

We are now back into the swing of things and running weekly virtual youth club sessions. These are really exciting hours when young people from the village are meeting up and taking part in online challenges, games of Pictionary, The Whisper Challenge, tricky drawing challenges, bird quizzes, Deal or No Deal (sadly no real money but our young people did win £10,000), duck races, poo identification (I kid you not), discussion about music for a special project we have lined up, kazoo playing, and aeroplane making, and most importantly, simply talking and connecting with each other away from the stresses and strains of school life. We're particularly loving changing our backgrounds and using filters which change our appearance.

Aside from seeing the young people like this, we've had to drop resources off for them to be able to join in so it's been great chatting on the doorsteps and finding out all their news. We've kept our wellbeing hotline open to any young person in the village that might need a chat at the moment, and we're pleased it has had some use. There have been competitions with some great prizes, open to all. Well done to Luke for winning our January one. Our February winner will be announced in the next Chronicle. For those wishing to enter the March competition, please see the poster. Our book swap, which normally runs at the hall, has transferred to being outside 4 Jackson Drive and again, is available to all young people in the village.

As the nights draw out, we are reviewing our plans for meeting up again, and we're looking forward to being able to meet face to face. There are strict rules about what we can and can't do but we're hopeful that some sense of 'normality' will be resumed.

The last of our emergency surplus food supply had gone at the time of writing and we're really pleased to have been able to have helped so many of you. Please do keep an eye out on social media because you never know when we may get more in.

You may remember in the last edition we noted about changes in the hall. The lockdown has afforded us time to make these changes which we're looking forward to revealing to the young people soon. Thanks to generous support, further plans are being made, which those who have been turning up to our virtual youth club sessions have been instrumental in and these will soon come to fruition. The way things are going, when we reopen the hall, we will be a very well stocked provision offering more than we've ever been able to before.

Thank you all for your support, big and small, during these testing times.
